दोम न. (-ऋ) ' Junction, joining, union. ' Combination, association, meeting, confort. ' Religious and abstract meditation. ' Keeping the body in a fixed posture. ' Devotion, spiritual worship of God, or union with the Supreme Being by means of abstract contemplation; this does not necessarily imply an abandonment of the world or relinquishment of the usual observances of religion, but it involves internal indifference to objects of pleasure and pain, and utter disregard of the consequences or fruit of ceremonial rites. ' The particular practice of the preceding sort of devotion, or the exercise of that abstraction by which union with God is supposed to be obtained; in the Gita it is described as sitting on Kes'a grass, with the body firm, the eyes fixed on the tip of the nose, and the mind intent on the Deity; in the Tantras a fanciful operation is prescribed, by which the vital spirit seated in the lower part of the body, and the etherial spirit placed in the head, are supposed to be brought into combination in the brain, when the devotee becomes united with BRAHMA. ' The system of philosophy which treats of the union of the soul with BRAHMA or Gon; it is the same as the Patanjali doctrine, and constitutes one of the six Darsanas or philosophical schools of the Hindus. ' Magic, or the acquisition of supernatural powers by the mystical and magical worship of SIVA and DRAK especially. ' Consequence, result, the main end or object of any thing or act. ' Connexion of one thing with another, as of cause with effect, predication with subject, quality with substance, &c. ' Acquisition of something not possessed before, accession of property or wealth; in grammar this application is assigned to any unusual construction of words or compounds, unauthorized by rule, but sanctioned by the authority that employs them. ' A rule, an aphorism. ' Propriety, fitness. ' Side, part, cause or argument to be maintained or defended. ' Thing, substance. ' Wealth. ' A drug, a medicament, especially a compound of various ingredients. ' Fraud, trick. ' A logician. ' A spy, an informer. ' A violator of truth or confidence. ' A conveyance, a carriage, a boat, &c. ' A means, an expedient. ' Armour. ' Putting on armour. ' Lucky conjuncture. ' (In arithmetic), Addition. ' (In astronomy.) The leading or principal star of a lunar mansion. ' The twenty-seventh part of 360° of a great circle measured on the plane of the ecliptic, and used in calculating the longitudes of the sun and moon; each Yoga has a distinct name; astrologers also eumerate twenty-eight Yogas differently named from the foregoing, and corresponding with the twenty-eight Nakshatras, or the divisions of the moon's path, but varying according to the day of the week.
